THINKING BEYOND
THE SCORE

A LEADING CENTRE
OF EDUCATION AND RESEARCH IN SPORT

AISTS

International Academy of Sports Science and Technology

In any sport, the score matters. It creates winners and losers, medals and money, joy and tears. Athletes and trainers focus on the score and results; the next game is the most important thing in their minds.

Sports managers have different benchmarks. They are in charge of driving sports organisations, federations, marketing agencies, clubs or teams on the path to success. They have the responsibility of achieving sustainable development in all areas and of building an environment where athletes and trainers can concentrate on their performance – so they can leave the other worries behind.

With this in mind, a centre of education, research, innovation and technology transfer in sport was created in 2000 – the International Academy of Sports Science and Technology (AISTS) by the:

- International Olympic Committee,
- IMD Business School,
- Ecole Polytechnique Fédérale de Lausanne (EPFL),
- University of Lausanne,
- University of Geneva,
- Swiss Graduate School of Public Administration (IDHEAP),
- University of Neuchâtel,
- University of Applied Sciences Western Switzerland Valais,
- City of Lausanne and
- Canton of Vaud.

The mission of the AISTS is to develop and apply knowledge to the study of sports with a multi-disciplinary approach, incorporating the disciplines of management, economics, technology, medicine, law, sociology, and ethics. We offer the following services to the world of sport:

- International postgraduate master of advanced studies degree in sport administration and technology (MSA)
- Seminars and conferences on sports-related issues
- Independent and mandated research projects

Due to our location and founding members, our Academy has strong links to the Olympic Movement. Nevertheless, we are a neutral platform that upholds the standards of the Swiss label of quality and that integrates the sports fields, the academics, the governing bodies and sport companies.

AISTS President

OLYMPIC CAPITAL

The MSA: Thinking beyond the score...

... with exceptional sports-minded individuals

Every year the AISTS serves as an international melting pot for current and future sports managers. Through a highly selective application process, motivated and passionate sport-minds are selected to take part in the postgraduate MSA programme – Master of Advanced Studies in Sport Administration and Technology. In addition to a proven academic track record, the written application of the MSA candidate must reflect a strong will to shape the future business of sport. We also consider the candidate's involvement in the sports world, i.e. as athlete, coach, volunteer, etc. Letters of recommendation provide us with an independent assessment of the candidate's personality, interpersonal skills, and influence on people and organisations.

... with strong links to the Olympic movement

With the IOC being one of the founding members of the AISTS and located in Lausanne, the Olympic Capital, the MSA is strongly linked to the Olympic movement, its federations, and its core values – excellence, friendship, and respect.

... with hands-on experience during the year

Case studies, a team project for clients from the sports world, a two month internship, and the personal project give our participants hands-on experience throughout the year. Learning by doing is the perfect complement to our lectures.

EXCELLENCE

... with a multi-disciplinary and personalised approach

The MSA takes a unique approach by integrating technology into its curriculum. We strongly believe that sport managers today need to have a holistic understanding of the sports environment in order to achieve sustainable development. The MSA provides participants with sound knowledge in management & economics, technology, law, medicine, and sociology. Being able to consider all relevant aspects and to interact with experts in a variety of fields makes them a valuable resource for any sport organisation.

We deliberately keep the number of MSA participants to a small range of 30 – 40 participants to ensure a personalised and interactive environment.

... with world experts from academics and the field

Under the leadership of the AISTS the best Swiss academic institutes – the EPFL, the University of Lausanne, IDHEAP, and the University of Geneva – co-sign the MSA degree and cooperate to offer our participants a rich education programme. Complemented by lectures given by international experts, e.g. IOC, sport federations, Court of Arbitration for Sport, World Anti-Doping Agency, UBS, etc., the MSA participants also get the practitioner's view.

How to contact or recruit our MSA 2009 participants:

- Contact them through the AISTS

E-mail: msa@aists.org

Phone: +41 (0)21 693 85 93

www.aists.org

- Meet them at their:

- team project presentations at the MSI on 1-2 July 2009

(information on www.aists.org)

Since its foundation in 2000, the AISTS has proven an excellent preparation path for aspiring sports administrators. A number of AISTS students have brought their experience and fresh approach to the IOC through both internships or even a few permanent positions.

The multicultural environment in which AISTS students are being trained, with 20 different nationalities making up this year's programme, is very enriching and acts as an eye-opener in the global world of sport we live in today.

The presence of the AISTS in Lausanne benefits from a wide network of sports expertise in the region, as well as solid research institutions. Equally important, the AISTS contributes to the visibility and reputation of Lausanne as the Olympic capital city and one of the leading sports capitals of the world.

As one of its founding members, the IOC is proud to partner with the AISTS in many ways: proposing research themes for students, internships or support to new projects or services such as the recent and encouraging development of the Sustainable Sport and Event Toolkit (SSET) platform.

We truly believe that the students have made an excellent choice in deciding to follow these Master studies in the vast and fascinating area of sports management. We wish the 2009 class much success and hope that the students' passion for sport will soon translate into a "dream job" for many!

Gilbert Felli

Olympic Games Executive Director

At the International Cycling Union (UCI), we strive for excellence in all our activities. We continually search for the best responses to the challenges presented to us by the National Federations concerning global development in the changing economic environment. To do this, we call on our employees to be creative and innovative in their work. This is one of the UCI's major success factors.

AISTS' graduates stand out from the rest both in terms of their passion as well as their education. They are both open and solid individuals. Their success guarantees our future and we at the UCI can rely on graduates from the AISTS as true professionals.
