ABOUT THE AISTS

The AISTS was founded in 2000 by the International Olympic Committee (IOC), EPFL, University of Lausanne, University of Geneva, IMD Business School, Ecole Hôtelière de Lausanne (EHL), the City of Lausanne and the Canton of Vaud.

The AISTS responds to the needs of the sports industry by focusing its activity on three key pillars:

EDUCATION
Educating leaders in sports management through adapted education programs.

APPLIED RESEARCH
Providing knowledge and expertise in relevant fields applied to the sports environment.

CONNECTIONS
Acting as a strategic connector in the world of sport.

AISTS MISSION

The primary mission of the AISTS is to master sport by positively contributing to sports management through a multi-disciplinary approach to education and sciences by remaining at the forefront of the sport industry’s development and the Olympic movement.
When you signed up to do your masters, the desire to contribute to the ever-exciting world of sport must have been nothing short of burning. There are so many things to do and it is an ever-changing, motivating and challenging industry to work in.

We all remember the entrance of the joint Korean delegation in PyeongChang. This was the pinnacle of what an Olympic Opening Ceremony provides: a unique, magic and memorable moment.

It is undeniable that the sports movement and the Olympic Games allowed for further dialogue to resume regarding the future of the Korean peninsula. This was a great start to 17 days of winter sport at its very best!

International Federations have worked hard to create new events and new formats, always improving the way in which their sport is presented. Olympic Broadcasting Services and broadcasters took us even closer to the action, showing athletes at their very best, pursuing excellence and always pushing their boundaries that much further.

And it does not stop there: upcoming world championships will raise the level in the lead-up to the Olympic Winter Games Beijing 2022, which will raise the level even further, continuing to ensure that the Games continue to remain relevant and exciting.

At the time of writing this message, the Youth Olympic Games Buenos Aires 2018 are fast approaching, and expectations are high. The organisers have been both resourceful and excellent.

While the Youth Olympic Games are still developing as a brand and defining their positioning, Buenos Aires has used the event to their greatest possible benefit. Programmes for sports participation have been launched throughout the country, boosting interest in sport and new and very talented athletes have been identified. All in all, it is going to be very good for sport in Argentina.

Buenos Aires as a city has taken the opportunity to revamp some of its beautiful parks, and there will be new venues for a high-level training centre adjacent to a social housing development.

While you embark on this mission to graduate and find a job in sport, always bear in mind that the options are infinite. From financial engineering to broadcasting, from sports presentation to security, you will find your dream job. The one where you walk to the office in the morning with a sense of joy and pride, because at the end of the day, you will have made a difference.

Good luck!

Christophe Dubi
Olympic Games Executive Director
International Olympic Committee
There is one key reason why a sporting endeavour succeeds: people.

Over the course of the last few years, FIFA has celebrated many accomplishments, from implementing governance reforms to staging an impeccable 2018 FIFA World Cup™, which have one thing in common: they were only made possible by the presence of qualified specialists. To fulfil its gigantic potential, sport depends on education — and it is reassuring to know that organisations like the AISTS are constantly cultivating generation after generation of well-taught sports professionals.

FIFA has benefited from working together with talented AISTS alumni in the past, is doing it right now on the way to Qatar 2022 and it will keep on doing so in the years to come.
